Result of examination:

The submitted material is the type found in and associated with a gambling operation handling wagers on horse races.

The following specimens included various sports publications: Q7, Q8, Q10, Q13 through Q20, Q22, Q23, Q36, Q40, Q41, Q45 through Q48, Q50, Q52, Q55 and Q56. These publications include official racing programs, "Daily Racing Form" newspapers, sheets often referred to as "scratch sheets" and newspaper clippings. Such publications are important both to a bettor and to a bookmaker in order to obtain useful data concerning races. Bookmakers maintain these also for the use of their bettors. Also included were books often called "Dream Books." These are based on numerology and give a bettor certain "lucky" numbers as a result of events such as one's dreams. Bettors wagering on horses frequently use these numbers in making their selections of horses by corresponding numbers.

In Q3, Q5, Q11, Q21, Q24, Q26, Q29, Q30, Q31, Q32, Q39 and Q49 were found notations and/or adding machine tapes in the form of calculations for the status of various accounts. Because of the absence of supporting records the precise nature of these notations could not be determined.

The following specimens contained notations in the form of wagers on horse races: Q1, Q4, Q18, Q27, Q28, Q30, Q33, Q35, Q36, Q37, Q41 through Q46, Q49, Q52 through Q55, Q57 and Q58. In some of these notations the designations for several different bettors were noted. Many of these notations either did not list the track where the horses were running or did not list the amounts of the wagers. Such information is generally understood by the person recording the wager. However, the absence of complete data prevents an estimate of the amount of wagering activity. These wagers were undated. Similar notations were also found on many of the aforementioned racing publications.

The adding machine tapes, some of which include figures in odd cents which are uncommon to racing wagers, are not sufficiently complete in order to make an estimate of wagering.

The submitted material will be returned separately.

Date: October 31, 1972

Office: Milwaukee

Field Office File #: 166-492

Bureau File #: 166-5776

Title: [redacted]

Character: INTERSTATE TRANSPORTATION IN AID OF RACKETEERING -
GAMBLING; ILLEGAL GAMBLING BUSINESS

Synopsis: On 10/2/72, AUSA [redacted] advised that after several weeks of deliberation, he has decided to decline any Federal prosecution regarding this case as evidence seized and investigation does not merit prosecution at this time under Title 18, Sections 371 and 1955, USC. In addition, evidence seized in search warrants executed on 7/26/72, indicated minimal volume of business and no evidence was uncovered that indicated interstate activities. AUSA further advised unless further investigation develops facts to show a substantial betting operation, evidence already in FBI custody should be remanded to local authorities. On 8/15/72, evidence seized in raids on 7/26/72, sent to FBI Laboratory. Results of FBI Lab analysis showed evidence, the kind associated with horse gambling. However, no estimation as to the amount of money and activity of the horse betting operation could be determined.
